

MISS CHARCOT IS WINNER IN DRIVE

Battles With Miss Gayle All Way in Two-Year-Old Stake Event.

Charleston, S. C., February 1. The first two-year-old state of the meeting was decided at Palmetto Park to-day in the Debutante, for two-year-old fillies, with a value of $1,000, and J. H. Morris furnished the winner in Miss Gaiety, the last named and Miss Gaiety fought a very close race. She lay all through the stretch, and at the finish they were as named, noses apart, with Ruby Hyams third. Trainer Jim Everman got out of a sick bed to come to the track to saddle Miss Charcot for the race, and was more than pleased at her show, and was more than pleased at her for the race, and was backed from

G. H. Pettingill, the jockey club steward here, received word from New York this morning that the applications of Jockeys McTaggart and "Skeets" Vandusen had been laid on the table. Vandusen was a better rider, however, and not as yet been granted a license and will not receive one until official word has been received from Judge Price that he is in good standing. Naturally handmen cannot accept any more mounts here until he has been retired from the force. Joseph L. Wood was received here to-day by Fred Luzader, the well-known trainer, had died in Cincinnati. His brother, Al, is now in the hands of the brasserie. R. Vainwright which Fred has handled for years. # ROANOKE COLLEGE NAMES SCHEDULE

Practically Every School in Virginia Will Be Met on Diamond.

Salen, Va., February 15.—Manager Houshour has just announced Roanoke College's baseball schedule for the approaching season. He has made a selection from the list of teams in the South, making an extended trip out of the State. While the schedule does not include as many games as some have in former years, it is one of the most satisfactory that Roanoke has had in recent years. It includes teams practically all of the colleges of the State of equal rank with Roanoke, and will give the team an opportunity to meet some of its closest rivals.

Coach Kenny will issue his call for members of the team this evening. He will begin work with his pitching staff before that time in the gymnasium. There are but few of last year's team in college, so that it is impossible to

HERMITAGE GOLF CLUB

The putting contest at the Hermitage Golf Club yesterday was won by Mrs. C. H. Dunaway, who turned in a score of sixty-one for the two clocks. Her husband of the same name, a not so of fifty-six. The lowest gross score was made by Mrs. J. Allen Belvin, who made fifty-nine with a handicap of two.

The next tournament will be held Saturday, Washington Day. This will be a men's handicap. The new course of 3,000 yards will then be tried for the first time.

The new course is much longer than the old course and is expected to be much harder to play because of additional bunkers and natural hazards.

R. A. A. F. News Notes.

A meeting of the delegates from the new organizations affiliated with the Richmond Amateur Athletic Federation will be held next Friday night in the Central Y. M. C. A. The purpose of this meeting is to submit to the members the report of the executive committee regarding the proposed open air track meet to be held at the State Fair Grounds on Saturday, August 10.

The classification of the athletes will be ready for distribution, in printed form, so that the members may familiarize themselves with what has been suggested.

Several applications for membership in the federation will be acted upon and a report from the members is expected as to what they will do to help in the preparation for the summer carnival to be held in connection with the indoor meet of the Richmond Blues and Richmond College on the 8th of

UMPIRES I HAVE

William Dineen, more familiarly called "Bill," has been known to the baseball fans for a long time, as it was none other than this same Bill Dineen who really pitched the Boston club to a world's series against Pittsburgh back in 1902.

Bill, although often spoken of as "old Bill" Dineen, is yet a comparatively young man, having been born in Syracuse in 1879. Yet as baseball goes, he is an old man.

After the disposal of Jimmy Collins by Boston in 1905, Dineen was sold to the St. Louis club, where he pitched until his arm gave out. Then he applied to E. F. Johnson for a job. That was in the summer of 1909. He was appointed as a member of the American League staff in August, 1909, finishing the season and being retained for the following year.

His success as an umpire has been just as great as his playing days were. From the very jump he made good. Every ball player knew him as a good fellow, and the umpires with whom he was working were glad to boost his stock, because he had always been a good fellow to work behind.

Bill has his faults, as he has to often tell with the players. He often tells that after looking them all over he decides to handle some with kid gloves, and other players will then call to mind a funny coincidence that happened in Detroit. Donnie Bush, a man sliding into second base, and when I called him safe he started in to fuss with me, although he missed his man at least a foot. He raved and finally finished up by saying: "Why don't you talk back to me like Bill Dineen does, so I can get this out of my system?" This remark was very amusing to me, for I remember dis-

Bill takes the best of care of himself, keeping good hours and not abusing himself during the playing season. He is very well known around the circuit, and it's no uncommon sight to see him sitting around the lobby of the college's gymnasium, waiting for the collegians shot a goal.
